Applauding a good deed

Remember Barley Parrish, the Yolo High School counselor who had a $5,200 piece of cancer-fighting equipment stolen from her car in the school parking lot on March 3?

The story hit the news (including the News-Ledger) on March 8, and one Channel 13 viewer responded instantly to a broadcast the same evening. Jonathan Davis of Elverta wrote a check for $5,000 to Parrish, whom he had never met.

Last Thursday, Parrish, the Washington Unified School District's board of trustees, students from Yolo High School and members of the West Sacramento community gave the retired serviceman a standing ovation as he attended a brief "thank you" ceremony in honor of his kindness. The ceremony was part of the school board's meeting that night.

Elverta's Jonathan Davis (left) got a warm welcome in West Sacramento on Thursday after he stepped forward to help Barley Parrish (right), a stranger in need. Parrish is a counselor at Yolo High School, an alternative school located on Westacre Road in West Sacramento.

Students from Yolo High, meanwhile, had raised $500 as a "no questions asked" reward for the return of the equipment. It hasn't been returned. But Parrish hopes to replace the "alternative" piece of medical equipment, with help from Mr. Davis, as part of her battle against stage four cancer.

Administrator: ground-work not in place for 'small learning centers'

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The plan to transform the way students at River City High School are taught by creating "small learning centers" (SLCs) has hit some stumbling blocks, reported Alec Ostrom, interim assistant superintendent, at Thursday's meeting.

The teacher coordinating the effort, Luis Medina, has tendered his resignation from the district.

Other teachers are resisting the concept of SLCs, and their union complained publicly that it is "disturbed" that plans for SLCs are moving forward, since "issues such as changes to the work year must come to the (negotiating) table first."

Ostrom said he has been looking into the SLC effort, which is partly funded by a grant from Microsoft co-founder Bill Gates's foundation, and found it wanting.

"Typically in a project of this type, you have a district personnel overseeing the project," he said – adding that there had been none to date. Added to Medina's resignation and a succession of different principals at the school, and the project is not in good shape.

"Quite frankly in the last two months (at WUSD) I have been a little bit surprised at the things that have not been put in place," he told the school board.

Board president Kevin Jones worried about delays to implementing this "schools within a school" concept at the high school. He said some families are already sending students out of town because they do not have faith in River City High.

"Our goal is to implement this next year, and if we do not have our act together enough, I'm afraid it will push more people out the door," said Jones.

Ostrom recommended negotiating with the project's fund sources for "more time" to get the SLC project on track.

Also at the meeting, RCHS English teacher Theresa Luttrell, a member of the teachers' union negotiating team, complained to the board that the district had not yet put a contract offer on the table. She cited a litany of school district expenses she deemed questionable, including the "$98,000 buyout" of former superintendent Patrick Campbell's contract, hiring of an interim superintendent (David Tooker) for "669 per day," and the cost of pursuing SLCs "which are not supported by the majority of the staff at the high school."

Proposing a raise for the teachers, she said, "teachers will not accept the 'we do not have enough money' excuse that is used all too much. Make teachers a priority now," she added.

Volunteers 'green' a park

On Saturday, volunteers from West Sacramento's "San Pedro Association" joined city arborist Dena Kirtley in planting a dozen shade trees at San Pedro Park, 708 North Hobson Avenue.

The trees were funded by the city's "Trees for Tomorrow" program, with grant funding by the Lower Northwest Interceptor sewage line project. The trees included five Chinese pistache and seven London plane trees.

Volunteers helping with the planting were Dennis Freitas, Larry Freitas, Bryan Benton, Camilo Cervantes, Robert Freitas, Garrett Freitas, Dennis O'Connor, and Larry Benton, along with Larry Benton of Olympia, Washington. Lunch was provided by Sharon Freitas.

Other groups – including schools, churches and community groups – may fill out a short application form if they wish to receive trees from the same program. Contact arborist Dena Kirtley at 617-4620, or email her at dena.kirtley@ci.west-sacramento.ca.us.

So far, over 20 trees have been planted at Southport Elementary School through the program, as well as 40 at Evergreen Elementary and 20 at the Tree of Life Church.

FOOD SERVICE:

Volunteers help put food on the tables of local seniors

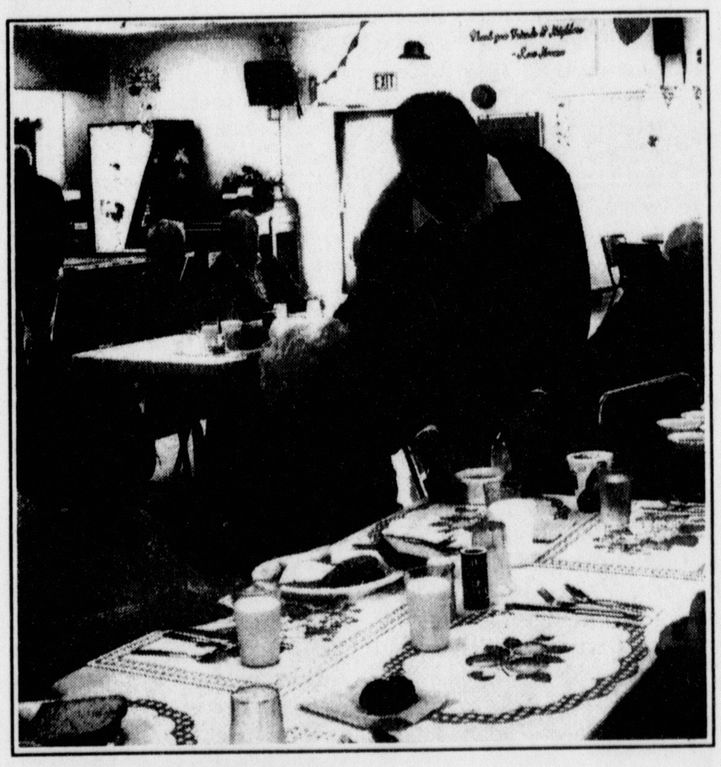

The Yolo County Elderly Nutrition Program participated in "Mayors for Meals" day on March 22, inviting mayors to volunteer in local senior food programs.

And while neither Mayor Christopher Cabaldon or Vice Mayor Carolyn Castillo Pierson of West Sacramento was able to make it, City Councilman Wes Beers helped out by serving meals at the senior center on Cummins Way.

The Elderly Nutrition Center provides low-cost meals at the center, and also is the hub for "Meals on Wheels," which uses volunteer drivers to take hot meals to seniors who may be homebound.

"Last year, the Elderly Nutrition Program served 78,310 hot, lunchtime meals to over 1,400 seniors throughout Yolo County. . . through our 'Wheels' program and the 'Congregate' program in the senior/community centers," reports Colleen Brock of the Elderly Nutrition Program.

For more information on the program – including how to volunteer – call (530) 662-7035 or visit www.elderly-nutrition.org.

Local levees: 'critical' condition?

Assemblywoman Lois Wolk has asked the governor to add three Yolo County levee erosion sites to the state's list of levees in urgent need of repair.

Two of those sites are Sacramento River levees protecting West Sacramento, and the third is located in Woodland at Cache Creek.

"All three sites are in immediate need of repair and should be considered along with other Yolo County sites already on your critical erosion sites list," Wolk wrote the governor. "As you well know, the levee system within the Sacramento River Flood Control Project is in dire straits as you so clearly states as the basis for your declaration of a state of emergency for the entire system on February 24, 2006."

Eight of the 24 "critical" sites on the governor's list are in Yolo County, reports Wolk's office.

Kids say the funniest things -- even in church

Note: The following little "Children in Church" gems were recently passed along to me by a friend, and with Easter not too far off now, I thought you might enjoy a few of them, too.

* A little girl was sitting on her grandfather's lap as he read her a bedtime story. From time to time, she would take her eyes off the book and reach up to touch his very wrinkled cheeks. Then she would stroke her very soft cheeks, as if comparing them to her grandfather's. Finally she said, "Grandpa, did God make you?"

"Yes, sweetheart, God made me a long time ago, and he also made you, just a little while ago."

After feeling their respective faces again she observed, "God's getting better at it, isn't he?"

* The Sunday School teacher asked Johnny, "Tell me the truth -- do you always say your prayers before eating your meals?"

"No sir," little Johnny replied, "I don't have to. My mom is a really good cook."

* A little girl became restless as the preacher's sermon dragged on and on. Finally, she leaned over to her mother and whispered, "Mommy, if we give them our money now, will they let us go?"

* Ms. Terry asked her Sunday School class to draw pictures of their favorite Bible story. She was puzzled by Kyle's picture, which showed a bunch of people on an airplane, including Mary, Joseph, and Baby Jesus. She asked him which story it was meant to represent.

"The Flight to Egypt," explained Kyle.

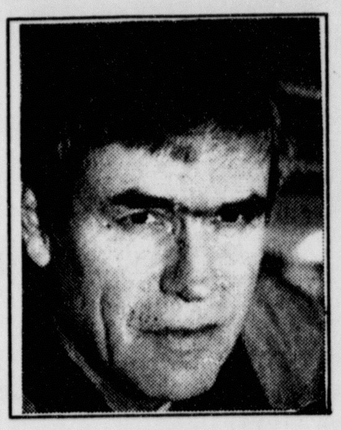

* A prayer from three-year-old Reese: "Our Father, Who does art in heaven, Harold is His name. Amen."

* Another little boy was overheard praying, "Lord, if you can't make me a better boy, don't worry about it, I'm having a real good time like I am."

* A Sunday school class was studying the Ten Commandments. They were ready to discuss the last one. The teacher asked if anyone could tell her what it was. Susie raised her hand, stood tall, and said, "Thou shall not take the covers off the neighbor's wife."

* After the christening of his baby brother in church, Jason sobbed all the way home in the back seat of the car. His father finally asked him what was wrong. Jason replied, "The preacher said he wants us all brought up in a Christian home, and I want to stay with you guys."

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

* I had been teaching my three-year-old daughter, Caitlin, the Lord's Prayer for several evenings at bedtime, when finally she decided to go solo. I listened with pride as she carefully enunciated each word right up to the end of the prayer when she said, "Lead us not into temptation and deliver us some E-mail."

* A Sunday school teacher asked her children, as they were on the way to church service, why it was important that they be quiet in church. One bright little girl replied, "Because people are sleeping."

* Six-year-old Angie and her four-year-old brother Joel were sitting together in church. Joel giggled, sang, and talked out loud, which finally made his sister say, "You're not supposed to make so much noise in church."

"Why?" asked Joel. "And who's going to stop me?"

Angie pointed to the back of the church and said, "You see those two men standing by the door?"

"Yeah."

"Well, they're hushers!"

* A mother was preparing pancakes for her sons, five-year-old Kevin and three-year-old Ryan. The boys began to argue over who would get the first pancake and their mother saw the opportunity for a moral lesson.

"Kevin," said his mother, "if Jesus were sitting here, He would say, `Let my brother have the first pancake -- I can wait'."

Kevin turned to his younger brother and said, "Ryan, you be Jesus!"

* A father was at the beach with his children when his four-year-old son ran up to him, grabbed him by the hand, and led him to the shore where a seagull lay dead in the sand.

"Daddy, what happened to him?"

"He died and went to Heaven," his father replied.

The boy thought for a moment and then said, "So did God throw him back down?"

* A wife invited some work friends to dinner. At the table, she turned to her six-year-old daughter and said, "Would you like to say the blessing this evening?"

"I really wouldn't know what to say," replied the girl.

"Just say what you heard Mommy say."

The daughter then bowed her head and said, "Lord, why on earth did I invite all these people to dinner?"

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The Big Dance ended abruptly for the top seeds in the NCAA Tournament which included a 250-1 team to win the tournament. I had a bad feeling about this year's number one seeds reaching the final four but it was a total shock to watch all four No. 1 seeds fall one by one.

I predicted Villanova would not attend the final dance but it was little-known George Mason University who stunned four pervious NCAA champions on their way to Indianapolis.

First, the Patriots beat Michigan State and then North Carolina fell to George Mason to advance the small college into the sweet sixteen. Then if that wasn't enough the college from the Colonial Athletic Association beat Wichita State and shocked the world, and all the Las Vegas gamblers, with their stunning overtime upset over the tournament favorite University of Connecticut Huskies.

Next Saturday the Patriots will be led by little know hero Lamar Butler and their under rated coach Jim Larranaga to face Florida with the winner moving on to the final game on Monday, April 3rd against either LSU or UCLA.

I like the big underdog Patriots to continue their quest to the NCAA championship but in the end the Katrina stricken LSU Tigers will end George Mason's Cinderella dance and will be crowned the new NCAA Basketball Champions.

NFL Updates

The NFL will be televising more games that you can imagine starting with an opening night doubleheader between Minnesota and Washington followed by a West Coast rivalry in Oakland between the Chargers and Raiders! Then for your added pleasure NBC will televise a Thursday game between Miami and the defending Super Bowl Champion Pittsburgh Steelers. The big wigs in the NFL will also bring us a triple headers on November 23rd to help us digest are Thanksgiving dinner!

Also, the Manning brother will meet for the first time during the first week of the season. So where will Ely's New York Giants meet the Indianapolis Colts?
Well, of course at Peyton's Place!

Are you ready for some football? Besides the city of Los Angeles lobbing for a new franchise, get ready for some huge changes to the rules. The owners are getting together to end excessive end zone celebrations and after further view they are considering a change to the reply rules to end the down by contact fiasco's of the Super Bowl.

Kings Korner

The Kings (35-35) dropped back to the .500 mark after losing on Sunday to the Golden State Warriors. The Kings had just celebrated a road victory the night before in Utah only to slide back into the eighth spot in Western Conference. The loss to the Warriors ended the Kings 13 game home winning streak but still keeps them two games ahead of the Jazz and Hornets.

The Kings will try to get back on track on Tuesday night when they entertain the Washington Wizards (7p.m.-CSN) followed by another road game on Wednesday against Portland (7:00 p.m.-CSN). The Kings will then bus up to Oakland on Friday night for a rematch with the Warriors (7:30 p.m.-Ch.10).

The Kings will then face the Los Angeles Clippers on Sunday, April 2nd (6 p.m.-CSN) at home before they travel to Texas for a couple big back-to-back games with Dallas and San Antonio. The Kings must win a least one of these games against the Conference leaders to move up to the sixth spot.

Major League Baseball

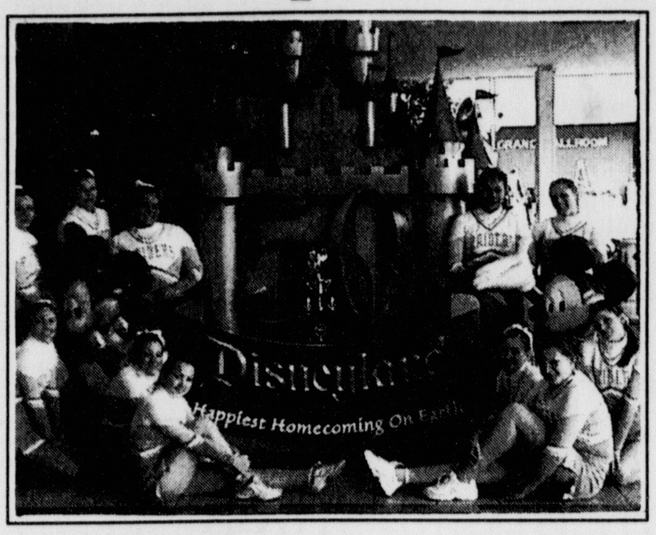

Opening day is just around the corner but don't forget to catch the Oakland A's game against our own River Cats on March 30th at Raley Field. The Giants will open the season on the road in San Diego on Monday (4 p.m.-ESPN2/FSN) while the Oakland A's open the season on Monday, April 3rd against the pinstriped boys from New York (7 p.m.-ESPN2). The Giants home opener is on Thursday against Atlanta (1 p.m.-.FSN).

Boxing & Mixed Marital Arts

On April 21st in Sacramento boxing fans will be treated to a history making event at the Arco Arena featuring the first time four brothers will box the same professional boxing card. Ernesto, Donovan and Vicente Castaneda will join their IBA Light Welterweight champion brother; Rogelio Castaneda Jr. (21, 10, 3 - 7 KO's) on this card as Rogelio defends his title against Craig Webber of Ohio (21, 1, 2 – 11 KO's). SPORTS

Sacramento heavyweight, Eric Martinez, is scheduled on the card.

This outstanding Oscar De La Hoya (Golden Boy Promotions) event will also feature the return to Sacramento of Woodland's 2004 Olympian Vicente Escobedo. Escobedo, who will bring back the large crowds to the Arco, is one of the best young boxers to turn professional in the last 10 years. This kid is very good and worth the price of admission.

Also, the State of California will begin to oversee the promotions of Mixed Martial Arts (MMA) events. This newest form of combat is a mixer of boxing, kickboxing, karate, and wrestling. Sacramento will host its first MMA event on April 1st at the Arco Arena while other California cities have already begun to stage these nights of entertaining fights.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

to improve to 6 and 0 in the CVC and 10 and 0 overall.

Against Dixon, the Raider were led by the girls doubles teams of Andrea Kaine and Anna Bouttavong (10-2 at #1) and Kristina Michener and Koy Saetern (10-0 at #2). They also received wins by their boys doubles teams of Adrian Araza and Gary Yang, and Brandon Yip and Chris Salazar. In addition, Michael Soto and Sandy Phouanglasy won their nail-biting mixed doubles match 10-9(6).

In singles action against Dixon, River City took the #1 boys match as Jordan Balluch triumphed 6-3,6-3, and the #2 girls match where Yelena Ionova won a marathon in a third set supertiebreak 10 points to 8. The day's most exciting match took place at #1 girls singles where Raider Captain Vu Tran lost in a third set tense tiebreak 6-8.

On Thursday against Center, Tran bounced back to lead the Raiders to their fifth shutout of the season with her 6-1,6-1 win at #1 girls singles. Ionova, Balluch, and Yip also won easily in their singles matches while the doubles teams of Kaine/Bouttavong, Michener/Saetern, and Soto/Phouanglasy all cruised to 10-1 wins. In boys doubles, Araza and Yang won at #1 and Bjay Patel and Doug Tipton at #2 by identical 10-4 scores.

The CVC schedule continues for the Raiders with a trip to Gold River Racquet Club tomorrow to face Sacramento Country Day, with a 4 p.m. home match on Tuesday against Rio Linda.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Three out of every four tornado touchdowns in the world occur in the United States.

• The French are well known for their knowledge in matters of the heart. It shouldn't be surprising, then, that the proverb "Try to reason about love and you will lose your reason" is attributed to the French.

• Virtually every major metropolitan area in the world has some sort of a subway system, and millions of people use that form of transportation every day. Many of those passengers would probably be surprised to learn exactly how long subways have been around: It was in 1863 that the world's first underground passenger train, the Metropolitan Line, began service in London. When the plans were still in the works, there were certainly people who were skeptical of this new mode of transport. In fact, The Times of London published the following critique: "It is an insult to common sense to suppose that people would ever prefer to be driven amid palpable darkness through the foul subsoil of London." Few people agreed, evidently; the new London Underground was huge success as soon as it opened.

• Florida's state song, "The Swanee River (Old Folks at Home)," was written by Stephen Foster, despite the fact that he never actually visited the Suwannee River.

A "be on the lookout" was issued: a Honda Civic with three males in it had just left a local high school after cruising the campus several times and telling one staff member the occupants needed to use the bathroom there. Q: What are rates doing? Are they going up? What will rates be in 6 months? How can I guarantee my rate/payment for the long haul?
A: "moving", "yes/no", "I don't know", fixed rate"
These are daily questions we get in the mortgage industry. It is safe to say we can forecast a "RANGE" that rates will be within the coming days, weeks, and maybe even a month out, but past that...well lets just say the glass ball gets kinda fuzzy....
Nobody can truly predict what rates will do, only very good educated guesses. Even the people who decide what the rates are can't predict what rates are going to do farther out than "really" that day. So every rate is good, especially when rates are moving up, then you can say, "well at least I got in, in time", and if rates go down, then you always have the ability to refinance. Mortgage rates are incredibly sensitive to the borrower and their specific situation. It is safe to say that each and every borrower is different. They have different jobs, different credit, different debt, different credit scores, different houses, different savings, and just simply different circumstances. Because of everybody's different circumstances, their mortgage program may be different then, say...their next-door neighbor, or a co-worker. Every loan program has its own unique rate parameters.
No matter what unique situation you are in, you should never be paying more than one to two points for a loan, plus normal closing cost, and if all possible you should always avoid any pre-payment penalty, (if possible). After that, the rate you choose will be determined on your circumstance.
To learn more about what loan programs you may be eligible for, feel free to call our office and talk to one of our loan consultants who can sift through the many loan programs available to you.

Now here's a tip! by Jo Ann Derson
• If your sneakers are smelly, try this: Stick a sheet of fabric softener in each one. Let them set overnight, and most of the time the smell will be out by morning. Of course, you should rotate your tennies to help them "breathe," since wearing the same shoes day after day can foster bacteria growth — meaning your sneaks will really stink.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Bits & pieces

The thing that everyone noticed at last week's school board meeting was the composition of the new citizen's advisory committee – the group meant to help the board pick a new superintendent. There was a dearth of people applying for a spot on the committee. Most of the people who did apply were folks who have been at school board meetings a lot – usually to criticize the board and the district in general, and to criticize the associate superintendent in particular.

If the district's number-two official, the associate superintendent, does apply for the superintendent's post, it is hard to imagine her getting an easy interview from the citizen's committee.

The board postponed action on proceeding with "eminent domain" to force the sale of a couple of homes along Jefferson Blvd. The board is still trying to buy a handful of such homes to help with the configuration of the planned new high school campus. They are evidently having mixed success. Clearly, eminent domain is sometimes necessary, and clearly, a school site is one reason why. The question not clear in all minds is whether these specific homesites are necessary for this high school campus.

The city is proceeding with plans to make West Capitol Avenue "more like a room," with tree-lined sidewalks and medians, and with new construction coming out to the sidewalks instead of retreating behind parking lots. West Capitol is intended to become a lot like other healthy urban downtowns – a place to stroll and shop, or to enjoy a sidewalk cup of coffee, even a good place to live.

The city council seems enthusiastically "on board" with the new design concepts and the city's lead consultant seems knowledgeable and committed.

Old-timers will have trouble envisioning West Capitol making this transformation. Before being too cynical, though, they should think back to the days when the city's Southport Framework Plan was being created – there was nary a tractor or construction worker on the horizon, and to some, it seemed like there never would be. Now look at the rooftops and congestion in Southport.

Or remember another time, when a couple of guys you never heard of proposed building a minor-league baseball stadium in West Sacramento. They were nearly laughed out of town. And yet, tomorrow evening the Oakland A's will be in West Sacramento to play the Sacramento River Cats in an exhibition game.

Change happens. It's usually best to plan for it.

Letters to the Editor

Thank you mayor

I want to thank Mayor Cabaldon for his stand to not let our city's riverfront become a privilege for only the wealthy. I further implore him to follow his conscience and sense of fairness concerning our community. Please stand your ground against short-sighted, money-mongering developers. Also please keep in your mind and heart what is right for our residents, not special interests. Local residents as well as several groups -- regionally, statewide, and even nationally -- will be keeping an eye on this controversial issue. Let West Sacramento be a shining example of how a city takes care of its own -- including low-income residents.

Thanks for the help!

I would like to thank the many people who helped make the spaghetti fundraiser a success and those who sponsored me for my trip to Australia. A big thank you to the News-Ledger, VFW Post 8762, Walgreens, Havey's Barber Shop, Pro Golf Teacher/Ken Sawitzky, Nicks Diner, AKT Development Corporation/ Eleni Tsakopoulos-Kounalakis, Embarcadero Lions Club, The Works/Danette Liffring, Kathryn Van Diest, Sue Lemmon/Pampered Chef, Dave Lyons Real Estate, Maxine Ekstrom, Carole Izard, Karrin Smith, and all of my family and friends.

It was a great honor to be chosen Student Ambassador and I am really looking forward to learning much on my trip to Australia.

University Park supporter

As a Southport homeowner, I appreciate being asked for my input on development matters. University Park's recent mailings are a good example of how the remaining major Southport developers are spending time and resources seeking meaningful public input. Whether that input is positive or negative, University Park has always expressed a desire to hear what the community wants.

University Park's proponents understand that the remaining developments in Southport must be done right and that the amenities our community needs are properly financed or built up-front. We fully expect the city council to ensure that parks, schools and traffic improvements, like a potential bridge crossing, are planned before any housing units are approved.

University Park is also keeping flexible in an effort to try to accommodate the more significant needs of the community, like a new community center and a medical facility.

Over the next few months, West Sacramento must seize the opportunity to get the most out of the developments currently under planning commission review. It's up to residents to make sure that civic leaders and developers know what amenities we want added to our city.

Immigration thoughts

If the church, of whatever denomination or creed, a state, county, city, school district, or any other agency -- public or private, secular or religious -- wishes to ignore a federally mandated immigration law, then let us treat them more severely than if they were simply a state ignoring the formerly federally mandated 55 mile an hour speed limit. Let's withdraw all of their federal funds, not just some. In fact, we should make them totally responsible for the complete physical, emotional and financial welfare of their newfound charges -- for life (or at least as long as they're here illegally). In other words, make them completely financially and physically responsible for their act of conscience.

The wildly vociferous outcry from churches, hospitals, schools, and any other agency, public or private, at the prospect of becoming solely physically and financially responsible for those law breakers they choose to protect from our immigration laws will put the lie to their claim "We care" (`as long as you the taxpayer provide' being implied). My answer? You're entitled to all the compassion and sanctuary you can afford to give, but not at the expense of my country's sovereignty or well-being.

"The Hills Have Eyes"

Running time: 105 minutes
MPAA rating: R

An extended family on their way to California drives their trailer-camper down a remote road in the New Mexico desert. Little do they know the "short cut" given by the gas station attendant is really a trap.

Their camper is totaled and the family is stranded in the middle of nowhere with no cell phone reception, transportation or idea they are about to be hunted, killed and eaten by a clan of radiation-mutated cannibals — the descendants of a group of miners who were accidentally irradiated during the atomic tests of the 1940s and '50s.

That's the premise of "The Hills Have Eyes," a remake of the Wes Craven cult classic from the 1970s. I haven't seen the original, but having seen my share of dozens of remakes over the decades, I'm guessing this new version probably isn't as good as the first one.

Not that this new incarnation totally reeks. The middle part of the film is a thoroughly suspenseful and, yes, gory piece of cinema — probably the best I've seen this year.

The problem is the first act of the film drags and drags and drags. Sure, it gives us time to get to know the family so we can feel sorry for the victims, but it takes forever to get to the meat of the movie — in fact, almost an hour, which is more than halfway into the film.

But when we get there, the payoff is a good one. Not only do we see the family attacked by the mutants, but they also are forced to become as savage as their attackers in order to buy themselves more time.

As gore flicks go, "The Hills Have Eyes" is better than "Hostel" and not as cheesy as the "Saw" films. It's worth a matinee or rental, but I wouldn't pay full admission.

Q. I know that Jennifer Aniston and Brad Pitt each have their supporters in their marital problems. But I just read that Michael Douglas has come out against Brad Pitt's relationship with Angelina Jolie. Do you have any more information about this? — Janet B.

A. Jennifer Aniston and Brad Pitt have had people in Hollywood suppporting one or the other in their domestic dispute. However, in most cases, the supporters have kept a low profile, and work very hard to keep their feelings out of the press. Sometimes it's because they're friends of Jen and Brad, or because they might have to work with one or both of them later on.

Michael Douglas, apparently, felt otherwise. A longtime fan of Aniston, he came right out and told GQ magazine that he was baffled by Pitt's decision to break up with Aniston and take up with his "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" co-star, Angelina Jolie, and her two adopted children, Maddox and Zahara. What's sure to really raise a lot of eyebrows is Douglas' comment that if Pitt wanted children, he could have started a family with Aniston.

Meanwhile, Jennifer Aniston has apparently issued a statement that she's tired of being perceived as a victim, and plans to move ahead with her life. And part of that move will be making a new movie with her current boyfriend, Vince Vaughn. The flick's ironic title: "The Break Up."

Q. I am looking for the title of (an old) film about an aspiring symphony conductor, who at the start of his first conducting job, ripped the back of his (formal tail) coat. He was so embarrassed that he took it off and continued to conduct. The most important man at the concert, who was sitting in the front row, immediately rose and took off his coat, (followed by) every man present — a beautiful gesture. — D.W.

Jennifer Aniston

A. The film was the 1942 production of "Tales of Manhattan," which dealt with a tail coat's effect on the lives of the men who wore it. The actor who played the conductor was Charles Laughton. The film was a star-studded event that included, besides Laughton, his wife, Elsa Lanchester, along with Charles Boyer, Rita Hayworth, Ginger Rogers, Henry Fonda, Edward G. Robinson and Paul Robeson, among others.

Q. Will Hilary Swank ("Million Dollar Baby") and her husband, Chad Lowe ("Fielder's Choice"), divorce, or will they remarry? And did Hilary's two Oscars help break them up? — Myra R.

A. Hilary Swank and Chad Lowe, who married in 1997 and split this year, do see each other frequently and appear to be very good friends, which their friends feel bodes well for a reconcilation. As for the Oscars, I once overheard an interviewer ask Lowe if he ever feels jealous of Swank's many awards. Lowe answered: "I'm so proud of her, there's no room for jealousy."

"A Most Uncommon Degree of Popularity"
By Kathleen Gilles Seidel
(St. Martin's Press, $21.95)
Reviewed by Cindy Elavsky

A new school year has begun at Alden School, an upper-middle-class private school in the suburbs of Washington, D.C. A group of four best girlfriends, whose mothers also happen to be best friends, are beginning their sixth-grade year. Much to the shock of their mothers, they are the popular girls in school.

Lydia Meadows, mother to Erin, is amazed and secretly pleased that her daughter is a happy, popular and well-adjusted preteen. As the mothers of the popular girls, Lydia and her friends are now the "popular" moms. They organize the Spring Fair, wrangle spots for their daughters on the girls' vocal-ensemble group and carpool to slumber parties and soccer games.

When a new girl comes to town, her mother being a legacy at the school, she finagles her way into the cool crowd, edging out Erin in the process. Erin — and her mother — now must come to grips with being on the outside.

In this delicate comedy of manners and social position, a comparison to Jane Austen's "Emma" is practically unavoidable (the book's title is a line from Austen's book). Kathleen Gilles Seidel brings her readers a story of not only the trials of the children growing up, but also of their moms' maneuvering and positioning within their own little cliques.

In some ways, the mothers are worse than the exclusionary children. Seidel focuses much attention on the actions of the mothers and how they affect their daughters. In her subtle yet snarky way, Seidel slaps the hand of the social-climbing moms who are on the same paths as their daughters.

"A Most Uncommon Degree of Popularity" is a smart and strong look at the pressures to be the perfect mom to the perfect daughter — and how achieving that perfection is virtually impossible.

Jill Jackson's HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD ... Talk about Oscar '06 is tapering off, but still going on in some circles. Reese Witherspoon's win makes her even more marketable, with the price of her pictures doubling, while Philip Seymour Hoffman goes from supporting actor to leading man, and the film offers are now pouring in. His next commitment is to Searchlight Pictures to co-star with Laura Linney in "The Savages," about a pair of siblings forced to care for their indigent and ailing father who never cared for them when they were young. Filming starts in April in New York.

Further on the film front, Natalie Portman stars in "V for Vendetta" as a young woman working in Britain who is rescued from a life-and-death situation by a masked man known only as V. The masked man is played by Australian actor Hugo Weaving. Natalie says this was one of her most difficult assignments because of the mask on Weaving's face. She could get no facial reactions and had to depend on voice and body movements. Her next will be "Mr. Magorium's Wonder Emporium" with Dustin Hoffman (no relation to Philip Seymour Hoffman). ... And still more on film, "The Shaggy Dog" starring Tim Allen is for kids, but older kids. My 3-year-old assistant Brett says, "It scared me!" while my 5-year-old aide Jack reported, "It was OK."

WOW! Dan Brown's best-seller "The DaVinci Code," about to be released as a movie starring Tom Hanks, is now out in paperback, BUT not your ordinary everyday paperback book. It's a colossal edition with color pictures of art works, symbols, locations and architecture. It sells for $22.95, and it's gorgeous!

As I mentioned before, Oscar talk is over for '06 except among the foodies, who are still raving about the feast superchef Wolfgang Puck set before the Governor's Ball attendees. Luxurious canapés, an entree of roasted chicken breasts accompanied by black risotta, and chocolate Oscars for dessert. By the time the feast approached the chocolate Oscars, some of the imbibers didn't know whether they were chocolate or vanilla, and what's more, they didn't care. The good times rolled!

Aside to Helena K. of Covington, La. Yes, I knew Richard Simmons was from New Orleans, and I did see him when he moved to California. Although I haven't heard from him in a couple of years, I'm sure he is "still at it." If you want to know all about him and you have a computer, you might try www.RichardSimmons.com. ... And to Bertha L. of Carmel Highlands, Calif. Yes, Calista and Harrison are still a duo. And yes, she is continuing her career. The last I heard she is starring in a pilot for ABC titled "Brothers and Sisters." Her most recent feature film is "Fragile." And no, she's definitely NOT anorexic. She's just plain skinny!

BITS 'N' PIECES: Tim Allen's full name is Tim Allen Dick. ... Didya know Ellen DeGeneres first worked as a waitress, and then sold vacuum cleaners before she hit it big on the tube? ... And did you know that Regis Philbin is named after his father's high school? Yup. Regis High, a Manhattan Catholic School. How loyal can an alum be? ... No sign of Paris this week on the boulevard. ... AND if you're a tourist coming to town, you might like to know that Sunset Boulevard stretches 30 miles from downtown L.A. to the Pacific Ocean, with many mighty mansions along the way. AND at one spot, if you look up, you will see the famed HOLLYWOOD sign in the hills above.

B.B. King

Still going strong at the age of 80, B.B. King remains at the very top of the American cultural scene as a true living legend. He has won every musical and humanitarian award imaginable, including his 14th Grammy Award earlier this year. From his humble beginnings in rural Mississippi to the bright lights of clubs on Memphis' Beale Street and stages around the world, he continues to delight his fans while also influencing the styles of young musicians just beginning their careers. Catch him on tour worldwide throughout the year. For more information on B.B. King, go to: www.bbking.com

When listening to music while dining, what's your top food and beverage choice?

"Now that I'm a diabetic, I really have to watch my diet. Any dish with lots of veggies would be fine. Maybe a big chef's salad that includes avocados. Add some blue cheese dressing and a glass of wine, and that would be just right."

Name a food that you tried once and never ate again.

"Over 30 years ago I was in Japan, and the elaborate seafood dinner at a small restaurant included a dish with snails. Well, when you grow up in Mississippi, snails are not something you eat! But I tried one, mostly because the president of a record company was there, too, and he ate them. It tasted good, but I haven't eaten one since."

If you could create a candy bar with a special taste, what would it be?

"Man, that's easy: Butter Pecan Ice Cream. They make some really tasty sugar-free ice creams these days, and that's my favorite flavor."

When you can't get to sleep, what food or beverage helps you to relax?

"I'm not one for hot milk or other drinks. I like a crisp apple or some type of fresh fruit. It works every time."

How about a meal from your childhood that you'll always remember?

"I ran away from home once when I was a child, and hardly had any money with me. I was starving, and went up to a woman standing on her porch. She was so kind, and brought out a fruit jar filled with buttermilk along with some biscuits. I still think of that act of kindness today."

If your guitar, "Lucille," were a real live woman, what would she eat and drink?

"Well, Lucille is a Southern girl, so she likes to keep her shape and stay slim. I think she'd eat a lot of salads, maybe some grilled chicken, and skim milk."

Strange BUT TRUE

• Here's a test for you: Who made the following pronouncement? "Numerical superiority is of no consequence. In battle, victory will go to the best tactician." If you guessed Gen. George Custer, you're right on target. Judging his final battle by his own words, Custer must not have been a very good tactician. Or else he was just wrong, and numerical superiority does count for something. I don't think he'd be comforted either way.

• The Cayman Islands are well-known as a financial center, catering to individuals and organizations with an interest in offshore banking. The finance industry is so prevalent there, in fact, that there are more than 700 banks — that averages out to one bank for every 63 people who live there.

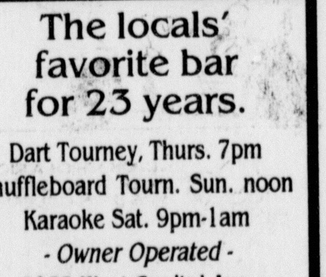

• It was humorist Fred Allen who observed, "California's a wonderful place to live — if you happen to be an orange."

• The next time you go to the mailbox and bring in all the junk mail and catalogs, consider this fact: 40 percent of the space in U.S. landfills is taken up by paper.

• We recently mentioned in this column William Friese-Greene, the 19th-century inventor who invented and got a patent for a motion-picture camera — and went bankrupt in the process. As it turns out, he wasn't a one-trick pony. He took out more than 70 patents over the course of his lifetime, many of which were far ahead of their time. He patented X-ray and light printing on fabrics, for example, as well as inkless printing. He even developed a method for the electrical transmission of images. Sadly, though, he never earned much money from his genius, and stayed on the verge of bankruptcy his whole life.

Citizens named to committee to pick new superintendent

School district administrators planned to "draw from a hat" to select applicants hoping to sit on a new committee charged with helping to pick a new superintendent. But most of the "slots" on the new committee drew only one applicant or none. So most of the seats became a foregone conclusion.

The district had asked for parents to represent geographical areas of the city, as well as student representatives and staff representatives.

Serving on the committee are: Liz Bagdazian, a high school parent representative; Larry Langford, representing middle school parents; his wife Dani Langford, representing parents south of the barge canal; Veronica Vallejos, representing parents between the canal and the railroad tracks; Mary Lasell, representing parents north of the UP tracks; Kimy Gibson, representing the district's "classified" employees; Mort Geivett (Yolo High Principal), representing secondary school administrators; his son Jacob Geivett, a student representative; Don Stauffer, representing secondary school teachers; and Carla Marquez, representing elementary school teachers.

The board was told it had received a late application from Yolo County Schools Superintendent Dr. Jorge Ayala. While board member David Westin said Ayala ought to be invited to serve, because of his experience and knowledge of local schools, other members led by Mary Leland and Barry Kalar worried that adding Ayala to the group would compromise the original design for the committee. They suggested finding another way to involve him. Ayala's application was not accepted.

Call (732) 469-8100 or visit www.zinsser.com for more information on removing and preventing mold and mildew and for other helpful home improvement tips.

One way homeowners learn what needs to be done is to have their home inspected. Paying as much as $5,000 to repair a leaky roof is cheaper than having to lower the selling price of your home by $10,000. "It's cheaper to fix it than to negotiate the price down," said Dan Steward, president of Pillar To Post, a home inspection service.
